Eric Hutton

Presents

Jokey Joke Time

Performed in The Old Melbourne Gaol where Ned Kelly was sentenced to death in 1880, Jokey Joke Time is an audiovisual mix of lateral stand-up with a handful of freestyle rap. The Sydney-born and recently Melbourne-based comedian Eric Hutton punctuates his deadpan stand-up with rapping based on topics suggested by the audience; a format met with great response at NSW festivals such as Peats Ridge and High and Dry.

The show is accompanied by:

- A screen-show of more than 50 drawings by artist Jon Kenner, created especially for the show
- Live original music performed by writer/comedian Jennifer Wong (Good News Week)

It begins with obscure topics rarely covered in comedy (Wagner), moves to more relatable and middle-of-the-road themes (things you hear walking down the street), and finally descends into childishness (bodily functions).

Bio Fast Facts:

- At the 2008 MICF he appeared in the Festival Director's Choice Award-winning show by Sam Simmons, Where Can I Win a Bear Around Here?; and debuted with The Zinger Machine
- Selected to MC for Mark Watson at his 2007 Sydney shows
- TV and radio credits: Stand Up Australia (Comedy Channel); filled in for Roy & HG with Sam Simmons on Triple J

"The Zinger Machine was an impressive display of awesome young talent in a brilliantly inventive structure. Truly one of the hidden gems of the festival."

- Groggy Squirrel

"... brilliantly droll and deadpan... he knocked us over with plenty of clever jokes." – Groggy Squirrel
